

A B S T R A C T

A method of regulating traffic in a transport system in which vehicles travel on a line provided with a 5 plurality of stations at which passengers can board and alight, wherein the running of the vehicles is regulated as a function of the passenger load on said vehicles, said load being determined by measuring the weight of passengers present in the vehicles.